"I enjoy working with adults and adolescent age children in my practice, individually and in couple, family and group sessions. My philosophical foundation is Humanistic Existentialism and my therapeutic orientation is eclectically balanced between a Mindfulness-based cognitive behavioral and psychodynamic approach. My sessions tend to be quite interactive and my focus is on the family system. My wife and I have been together for 35 years and have three young adult children. I appreciate the tough lessons that families face these days, including the strains imposed through parenting issues, elder care, financial demands and diminished time, to name a few. The many years that I have devoted to my career as well as to my own family have provided me with a compassionate understanding of the challenges that most people are confronted with in today's fast-paced, ever-changing world. I enthusiastically bring this knowledge to my work with my clients."

In addition to his in-office sessions, Dr. Johnson has clients throughout the world and conducts consultation and psychotherapy sessions via the phone and Skype as appropriate. He accepts most major credit cards for payment of services rendered.

Sincerely,

Stephen J. Johnson, Ph.D.
